A 35-year-old woman who underwent left salpingo-oophorectomy for an ovarian germ cell tumor (OGCT) presented with ascites and a retroperitoneal mass. Computed tomography revealed a large, soft, irregular mass with calcification in the left paracolic gutter. Tumor resection was performed and the pathologic diagnosis was histologically confirmed to be OGCT. Pathologic examination of the resected retroperitoneal mass revealed inflammatory changes in the stroma. Infiltration of tubules by tumor cells was accompanied by inflammation; they resembled seminoma cells. This is a unique case of malignant transformation in a germ cell tumor.Kukla's Korner Hockey There are a couple of important truths that generally aren't talked about when it comes to hockey and hockey moms. Truth #1: Hockey moms are pretty much awesome. Many hockey moms have stories similar to this. They learn their first hockey goal was "coincidental," and it was shot off of a kick-in on the side boards with the player out of position
